Report on Sanskrit Shloka Citation Competition

Topic: “Vaada Anuvada of Sanskrit Shloka”

The Indian Knowledge System Club successfully organized a “Vaada Anuvada of Sanskrit Shloka” activity on 23 April 2026 in the Department of Data Science and Artificial Intelligence. Students enthusiastically participated and presented Sanskrit shlokas from ancient Indian texts along with their translations, meanings, and relevance in modern life. The activity provided an excellent platform for students to explore the richness of Sanskrit literature and traditional Indian knowledge systems.

Participants explained the philosophical, moral, and cultural significance of various shlokas and highlighted the importance of preserving Indian heritage through Sanskrit language and literature. The event also helped students improve their pronunciation, interpretation skills, confidence, and understanding of ancient Indian traditions.

The activity was organized under the guidance and support of the Chairman of the Department, Prof. Manu Sood. Students participated with great enthusiasm and presented Sanskrit shlokas with meaningful interpretations and explanations. The event highlighted the importance of Sanskrit literature and Indian Knowledge Systems while encouraging students to appreciate and understand the timeless wisdom preserved in ancient Indian texts.

The Indian Knowledge System Club extends its appreciation to all participants, faculty members, and organizers for making the event informative, inspiring, and successful.
